ROBBERS ENTER DAGLER'S HOME

Suspicion Falls on Band of People Who Claimed to be Missionaries.

MADE A VERY CLEAN HAUL

Former Rush County Farmer Suffers From Daylight Robbery in Wayne County.

The Richmond Palladium has the following story about the robbery of the home of Charles Dagler, who until recently, lived in Rush county.

Thief or missionary—which?

To determine the answer the police department is now seeking to gain evidence. The property located on the John F. Miller farm, four miles east of the city, occupied by Charles Dagler and family was entered and robbed yesterday afternoon. The only suspicious characters that have been about the Dagler home for the past several days composed a party that called the other day and asked for accommodations during the night. They claimed to be missionaries. The Daglers were not imbued with hospitable feelings for the wanderers and refused to throw open their portals to them. And now the family misses some of its valuables.

While the family was away from home between 1 and 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the house was entered and robbed of a gold stop watch, a $5.00 gold piece, a safety razor, a cravat pin and a few other articles of value. There is no clue to the identity of the thieves. All members of the police force were notified of the robbery and instructed to arrest suspicious appearing characters and hold them for the superintendent.

MAD DOG CAUSED MUCH EXCITEMENT

Valuable Bull Terrier Belonging to Earl Riley Was Shot Yesterday—Acted Strange.

WAS SOLD TO A MAN IN TEXAS

A cry of "mad dog" in the vicinity of the home of Earl Riley in East Fourth street yesterday caused no end of excitement among the neighbors. Members of the Riley family were seen frantically and strenuously dodging and chasing a bull terrier, who in turn, was snapping at those who came within reach. The dog was finally shot and killed.

Some thought the animal had gone mad, but Mrs. Riley is of the opinion that he drank a quantity of lye water from a pan in the back yard and this caused the dog to act in the peculiar and unnatural manner.

The canine was very valuable and had been sold to a man in Texas for the sum of $250.

HELD THE YEARLY MEETING

Officials of the Glenwood Bank Were Named Saturday.

The annual meeting of the officials of the Glenwood State Bank, was held at Glenwood Saturday. Directors were chosen as follows: L. T. Bower, E. W. Ansted, T. S. Richardson, Dr. H. H. Elliott, J. C. Carlos, B. F. Thiebaud and James McCann. These directors elected the following officers for the year: E. W. Ansted, president; Dr. H. H. Elliott, vice-president; T. G. Richardson, cashier; and B. F. Thiebaud, assistant cashier.

IRRATE WIFE SAW THE COOKING PAIR

Affinity Stunt Was Settled Out of the Courts Late Saturday Night.

WRONGED WIFE APPLIES FISTS

The air was blue around the fire engine house in West Third street Saturday night about nine o'clock. And it was all on account of an "affinity" stunt. A married woman found her husband in company with another woman, walking along the street arm in arm, and those who saw the fracas declare the wronged wife not only whipped the woman, but drew blood in several spots from her husband's face. No arrests.

THINK HUNTERS CAUSED THE FIRE

Farmers Are up in Arms Against the Men With Arms in Fayette County.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE ON FARMS

Says the Connersville Courier: Hunting on farms northwest of the city will not be permitted under any pretext from now on. Men who wish to hunt will do well to go into some other section. Owing to a destructive fire, said to have been caused by hunters, which caused a loss of several hundred dollars on the Broaddus farm yesterday, all the farmers are up in arms against hunters.

NO GERRYMANDER FOR THE OLD BURNT

Those Talking of Making the Sixth District Democratic Will be Dissatisfied.

THEY MUST WAIT UNTIL 1911

Democrats of the Sixth Congressional district, who in a quiet way have been discussing the probability of a gerrymander for the past few days are doomed to disappointment of their hopes. The State can not be redistricted until 1911. The apportionment of congressmen is based upon the population as reported by the United States census. This is taken but once every ten years and will not be taken again until 1910.

Events in Politics

Electors meet in their State capitals on the second Monday in January—11th.

Congress canvasses the presidential vote on the second Wednesday in February.

A vote for Senator Hemmway's successor will be taken on the second Tuesday after the organization of the Legislature, which will be January 21st, if there is no delay in organizing.

The Legislature meets on the first Thursday after the first Monday in January—the 7th.

The Governor's term begins the second Monday of January—the 11th.

SEVERED PIECE OF TOE ACCIDENTALLY

Ben Goodin, While Cutting Meat, Let Large Meat Cleaver Slip and Strike His Foot.

RESULTS NOT VERY SERIOUS.

While cutting meat last Saturday, Ben Goodin let a large meat cleaver slip from his hand, and, striking his foot, severed a piece of his small toe. The wound is not very severe and it is thought nothing serious will result. Mr. Goodin is employed at the Harry Kramer meat market.

SHORT ANALYSIS OF BIBLE STORIES

Prepared by Mrs. Donnan Point Out Clearly and Comprehensively Their Literary Qualities.

WILL MEET AGAIN ON NOV. 21

The "Bible as Literature" class, under the leadership of Mrs. May W. Donnan of Indianapolis, held its regular meeting Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Thomas McWhinney in East Sixth street.

The short analysis of the Bible stories which Mrs. Donnan prepares for these meetings are in themselves masterly productions, at the same time pointing out clearly, simply and comprehensively the literary qualities of the Bible stories. Mrs. Donnan analyzed the stories of "Esther," "The One Little Ewe Lamb," "Nabal and Abigail," "Gideon," and "Jephthah's Daughter."

Byron's poem, "Jephthah's Daughter" was read and reference made to the story, in Shakespeare and Tennyson. In a review of the story of "Habab," Mrs. Donnan followed closely Richard Burton's drama of that name.

The next meeting on November 21, will be at the home of Mrs. Frank Hackleman in North Morgan street.

WILL PLAY GAME OF THEIR LIVES

The Rushville High School Foot Ball Team Will Play Brownsburg Here Next Saturday.

CHAMPIONSHIP IS AT STAKE

Brownsburg Clinched Hold on Title Last Saturday by Defeating Sheridan High School.

Possibly more interest will be centered in the foot ball game here next Saturday between Rushville and Brownsburg high schools than any other local game this season, because Brownsburg, by defeating Sheridan last Saturday in Indianapolis clinched their hold upon the State high school championship, thus making the battle here a fight for State honors. This title can be settled only by comparative scores as the best teams do not meet on account of their schedules not calling for the games. The visitors must win in order to retain their claim and the local boys must win in order to lay any claim to the State championship, so an exceptionally good game is expected when an honor of such consequence is at stake.

The Rushville high school foot ball team has been playing a first class article of ball this year and can be expected to make a creditable showing against the husky lads from Brownsburg. They have the weight, are shifty and rather speedy, although some improvement could be made in this department. Their improvement, however, in all the phases of the game has been remarkable since the beginning of the season. To see them play now, after having seen them in action in the first game of the season, the spectator would hardly believe it to be the same aggregation. This noticeable difference is probably due more than anything else, to the change in the line-up earlier in the season, the placing of heavier men upon the line and lighter men in the back field.

Several individual stars upon the local team far excel any other high school players in the State and if perfect team work could be perfected a winning aggregation would be the result. The Brownsburg team is heavy and also speedy, a combination which is hard to beat, and, although they may not have the individual work of one or two stars, their team generally brings about the desired result.

Captain John Moffett of the local aggregation is very optimistic as to the outcome of the struggle and is also sure that every member of the team will play the game of his life.

Much honor would be due to the high school team if they should bring this honor to our city as their registration is small and they are pitting themselves against high schools which have several times as large an enrollment.

The Indianapolis Star has this to say of the Brownsburg-Sheridan high school game in Indianapolis Saturday:

The Brownsburg high school eleven practically clinched its hold on the Indiana all-State high school foot ball championship when the squad of the Sheridan high school was sent down in defeat by a score of 6 to 5 in the preliminary contest before the Indiana-Notre Dame contest at Washington Park Saturday afternoon. Pretty evenly matched, the two elevens struggled through two fifteen minute halves.

TO DECIDE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Al members of Franklin Lodge No. 35 I. O. O. F. are requested to attend the meeting Wednesday night, when arrangements will be made to attend the dedication of the new Grand Lodge building in Indianapolis, November 18.

It is planned to go as a county delegation from Rush county, providing arrangements can be made with the other lodges throughout the county. In event such a plan materializes, special cars would be chartered and a band secured to head the delegation.

HALL DEPRIVED OF A GREAT FUN

Will Not Get to Appoint the Senate Committee Which is a Happy Occupation.

HAPPENED JUST ONCE BEFORE

If Frank J. Hall of Rushville, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, is found to be elected, says the Columbus Republican, he will not have the fun of appointing the senate committee. The senate has the power to make its own rules and these rules say who shall name the committee. In case a Democratic presiding officer is chosen, the senator, being Republican by a small majority, will make a rule by which it will name its own committees. This happened once before when a Republican lieutenant governor presided over a Democratic senate. In that case the Democrats appointed their own committees.

Captain John Moffett of the local aggregation is very optimistic as to the outcome of the struggle and is also sure that every member of the team will play the game of his life.

Much honor would be due to the high school team if they should bring this honor to our city as their registration is small and they are pitting themselves against high schools which have several times as large an enrollment.

WATSON SENDS HIS BEST WISHES

Defeated Candidate Hastens to Write Congratulations to Successful Opponent.

PURELY PERSONAL VIEWPOINT

Prays That Administration Will be Successful and Offers Services For That End.

A telegram to the Indianapolis News today from Ft. Wayne says: Governor-elect Marshall is overwhelmed with letters and telegrams of congratulations. Among them is one from James E. Watson, the defeated Republican candidate. It is as follows:

Rushville, Ind., November 4. The Hon. Thomas R. Marshall, Columbia City, Ind.:

My Dear Governor—Now that the people have spoken I confer my share of that title on you, though I had hoped to wear it myself.

As one individual writing to another, I congratulate you upon your success in this campaign. I can not do it from a political standpoint, as you will readily understand, but from a purely personal viewpoint, I do so with pleasure.

I trust that your administration will be successful, and I shall be pleased to render any service I may be able to give you to make it such.

Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away, we are no longer Democrats or Republicans, but are all Hoosiers, and I want you to feel that I am ready to advance any cause that will in any wise insure to the welfare of the people of this great State.

With kind personal regards to both Mrs. Marshall and yourself, I am yours very sincerely,

JAMES E. WATSON.

EARNEST PLEA FOR HELP IS SENT HERE

Miss Eudora Shortridge, Formerly of This City Tells of Fire in Edwards, Miss.

GIRL'S BUILDING IS DESTROYED

A letter has been received by Rev. R. W. Abberley from Miss Eudora Shortridge, formerly of this city, but now an instructor in the school for colored children in Edwards, Miss., telling of a disastrous fire which burned one of the buildings of the institute and completely destroyed all the rooms where the girls lived. She makes an earnest plea for help in the form of clothing or any article which goes to make a girl's room comfortable. A committee was appointed to look after the matter.

VOTED IN A LOG CABIN

Only Place of Such Character Was at Raleigh.

Probably the only voting place that was in a log cabin in Tuesday's election was the one at Raleigh, Rush county. The cabin was built in 1846 by Samuel Legg. D. P. Saul, its present owner, bought the logs in 1871, and moved them to Raleigh, where the cabin was rebuilt.

Duties of the President Makers

Methods Followed by the Electoral College In Choosing the Chief Executive and Vice President—Development of a System That Has Been the Center of Various Momentous Disagreements.

By FREDERIC R. TOOMBS.

THAT things are not always what they seem is very well exemplified by the manner in which the American people elect their president and vice president. If you were to tell the average experienced voter that he has never legally and technically voted for either a president or a vice president he would probably class you with the people who still believe the earth is flat like a pancake.

The fact that a candidate for the presidency is named at a national convention and that his name is placed at the top of the ballot on election day has no relation whatever to the constitutional provisions regulating the mode of choosing a president. The name of the president or vice president would be left off the ballot if the actual intention of the framers of the constitution were followed, and in spite of the "unwritten law" which has developed the placing of the national candidates' names on the ballot it is in an actual legal sense done only as a guide to the voter to indicate in a simple and effective manner what set of members of the electoral college he is to vote for.

The electoral college, composed of prominent partisans termed electors and whose names appear on ballots in national elections, has become a sort of fifth wheel, a useless appendix, in Union. After election the electors on the winning ticket are required to meet at some place designated by the legislature of the state on the second Monday in January and then and there cast their vote by ballot for president and vice president, one of which national candidates at least shall not be a resident of the same state as the electors themselves. As a result there never will be a national ticket made up of two men from the same state, for the electoral vote of the candidates' state would be lost to them. At the appointed time and place each body of electors makes up a list of all the candidates its members have for president and vice president, with the number of votes each receives. Every member of the college signs and certifies the list, the governor of the state certifies it, and the report is transmitted to the president of the United States senate. Both houses of congress assemble in the chamber of the lower house on the second Wednesday of February. The electoral votes are then counted, and the president of the senate then announces the result. If any person has received a majority of all the votes cast for president he is announced to be elected president, and a candidate for vice president must also receive a majority of all votes cast for that office to be elected.

Should a tie occur in the electoral vote the house of representatives shown in the latter day mode of electing the vice president. In the first national elections held the man receiving the largest number of votes in the electoral college became president, while the man who got the second largest number of votes became vice president regardless of party. Thus in the early days of our country we had a president from one party and a vice president from another. That system was terminated, however, at the opening of the last century, and today there is but the remotest possibility that the vice president will be of a different party than the president.

There is one phase of the electoral system that has been attracting considerable attention of late. That is the inequitable degree of representation had by various states in the electoral college. Some states have far greater proportionate representation than others in respect to population. Thus the citizens of those states so favored have a larger voice in the choosing of a president and vice president than the voters of less fortunate states. For instance, seventeen states can be grouped having a total popular vote of practically the same as that of New York, yet the electoral votes of these seventeen states are almost twice those of New York in number. Nevada, with a popular vote of 12,000 in 1904, has three electoral votes, or one to about every 4,000 voters. Indiana, with a popular vote of 682,000 in 1904, has only fifteen electoral votes, or one to every 45,400 voters. New York is another unfortunate state in this respect, having one electoral vote to every 41,400 voters.

Adopted after a prolonged and embittered dispute in the famous constitutional convention of 1787 in Philadelphia, the electoral college system has since its inception been the center of various momentous disagreements. When Washington was first elected to the presidency the legislatures of New York and New Hampshire were torn by dissensions which reached so far that no electors were chosen, and Washington consequently did not receive any votes from either of these states. At the second election, however, Washington received the unanimous vote of all the electors.

Notable Historical Episode.

At the second election Jefferson and Burr appeared as candidates, Kentucky giving the former four votes and South Carolina giving the latter one. At the third election they appeared again and this time much more prominently, Jefferson receiving 68 votes and Burr 30. John Adams, with a vote of 71, just one over the requisite majority, carried off the presidency, and Jefferson became vice president. North Carolina, Pennsylvania, and Virginia each gave Adams one vote, giving Jefferson the rest, and these three scattering votes made Adams president.

At the fourth election Jefferson and Burr appeared again, and the vote in the electoral colleges was a tie, 73 each, which led to the famous election by the house, an episode occupying a prominent place in American history. In 1825 there was another election by the house. For president Andrew Jackson had 90 electoral votes, John Quincy Adams 84, William H. Crawford 41 and Henry Clay 37, and neither candidate having a majority, it devolved upon the house to choose a president from the three highest. The election came off on Feb. 9, 1825, and on the first ballot Adams was elected—for Adams, 13 states; for Jackson, 7; for Crawford, 4. In this election Clay threw his vote to Adams, who in turn made him secretary of state, and the resultant cry of bargain and sale ruined the great Kentuckian's presidential prospects.

A Celebrated Controversy.

The celebrated Samuel J. Tilden-Rutherford B. Hayes controversy occurred in 1876. A violent partisan dispute arose over the electoral votes of Florida, Louisiana, Oregon and South Carolina. The entire matter was referred by congress to an electoral commission composed of eight Republicans and seven Democrats. As a result by a strict party vote 185 electoral votes were awarded to Hayes and 184 to Tilden. Some of the supporters of Mr. Tilden became so aroused over the decision that they openly talked of "taking Tilden to Washington and seating him anyhow," and threats of bringing about a civil war were bruited about.

The ablest men of the newly born United States founded the electoral college, choosing a system that was but one of a dozen advanced for the purpose of deciding the presidency and vice presidency. To Alexander Hamilton is given most of the credit for bringing about the adoption of the system as originally created by the federal judge of the circuit in which the electors meet. The copies received by the president of the senate are preserved in a specially constructed safe and additionally protected by an elaborate system of burglar alarms. When the president of the senate receives the sealed envelopes from the messengers containing the certified votes he delivers to them a receipt couched in the following guarded and noncommittal terms:

elects the president, voting by states, each state having one vote.

When a tie occurs for vice president it is the senate that has the privilege of deciding the question.

Votes Cast at State Capitals.

The successful electors of each state invariably meet at their capital to cast their votes. Three copies of the result are made, one being mailed to the president of the senate (vice president), the second being dispatched to Washington by a trusted messenger, and the third as a precautionary measure is deposited in care of the federal judge of the circuit in which the electors meet. The copies received by the president of the senate are preserved in a specially constructed safe and additionally protected by an elaborate system of burglar alarms. When the president of the senate receives the sealed envelopes from the messengers containing the certified votes he delivers to them a receipt couched in the following guarded and noncommittal terms:

Vice President's Chamber,
Senate United States,
Washington, D. C., —, 1908.
Received of _____ claiming to be a messenger to deliver the same, a sealed package purporting to contain a certificate of the votes given for president and vice president of the United States by electors of the state of _____, alleged to have been elected Nov. 3, 1908.

CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS,
Vice President of the United States and President of the United States Senate.

Next to the thrusting aside of the system in which the chosen electors exercised their individual choice for president and vice president the greatest change from the original constitutional provisions is probably that

Hamilton devoted the paper known as the "LXVIII Federalist" to the subject of the presidential election, and in it he urged many forcible reasons showing the advantage of submitting the choice to an independent body of men.

Among other things he said: "It is equally desirable that the immediate election should be made by men most capable of analyzing the qualities adapted to the station and acting under circumstances favorable to deliberation and to a judicious combination of all reasons and inducements that were proper to govern this choice."

"A small number of persons selected by their fellow citizens from the general mass will be most likely to possess the information and discernment requisite to so complicated an investigation."

George Washington was chairman of the convention, and active party were taken by such men as Benjamin Franklin, James Madison, John Dickinson of New Jersey, Pinckney of South Carolina, Alexander Hamilton and others.

Ohio's Belated Returns.

Columbus, O., Nov. 9.—With election returns arriving by every mail and mistakes being found in over half, necessitating their return to county boards of election, the results on the state ticket which are believed by leading Democrats to be shrouded in doubt, seem to favor the election of the Republican candidate below governor.

RESULT WILL BE VERY CLOSE

Cuban Election May Hinge on Few Votes.

NO DIFFERENCE IN PLATFORMS

Both Parties Are United on the Various Questions of the Island's Vital Needs, and the Struggle Dated for Next Saturday Is Frankly for the Possession of the Government and the Control of Public Patronage, General Menocal and General Gomez Leading the Respective Factions.

Havana, Nov. 9.—On Saturday next elections will be held throughout the island for president, vice president, senators and representatives in the lower house of congress, to whom, according to the present program, will be committed the fate of the restored Cuban republic on the termination of the government of intervention, Jan. 28, 1909.

The troops of the United States will be withdrawn on that date, which is three days in advance of the date originally set, in order that their departure may mark the anniversary of the birth of Joseph E. Marti, the Cuban patriot, and the great body of Cubans have striven during the last few months toward a selection of candidates who will best realize their desire for self-government.

Preparations for the elections are now complete. All of the election officers have been appointed, the electoral boards organized and the last ballots distributed, and the whole island is absorbed in the outcome of the struggle for supremacy. The Conservatives are headed by General Mario Menocal and Dr. Rafael Montoro, the presidential and vice presidential candidates respectively, while General Jose M. Gomez and his former bitter rival in the party leadership, Alfredo Zayas, are the nominees of the Liberal party, the Miguelista and Zayista factions of which finally united their forces in support of General Gomez, on the understanding that he would not be nominated for a second term.

It is assured beyond peradventure that absolute fairness will characterize the elections, about which every safeguard has been cast by the provisional government, in accordance with an elaborate election law framed by the advisory commission, of which Colonel Crowder is chairman. Both of the political leaders have given absolute assurances that they will accept loyally the result of the popular verdict.

There is practically no difference in the platforms of the two parties, both having as their chief planks the preservation of the republic, equal rights for all citizens, the encouragement of agriculture and commerce, and the maintenance of friendly relations with the United States. The struggle is franky for the possession of the government and the control of public patronage.

Both General Gomez and General Menocal are veterans of the revolution and have a large following in virtue of their distinguished services in the field. Dr. Montoro is the foremost orator in Cuba and was nominated in the expectation of his being able to control the Spanish vote, but he is unpopular with many Cubans on account of his attitude during the revolution, when he held office in the autonomous government in the last days of the Spanish regime.

Senor Zayas is the idol of a large section of the Liberals. He was the leader of the last uprising against President Tomas Estrada Palma, but his followers are suspected of giving but lukewarm support to the candidacy of General Gomez, between whom and Senor Zayas there was an implacable feud until it was apparent that the very existence of the Liberal party was dependent upon a compromise, whereupon Senor Zayas withdrew his pretensions to the presidency.

The two factions, however, did not actually fuse, but Zayas accepted a nomination for the vice presidency, and the Zayistas promised to aid in the election of the coalition candidates.

The business interests and the large property elements are strongly in favor of General Menocal, but the result of the presidential election will probably be very close.

Republicans Will Contest.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 9.—Contests in four counties in the First district are to be started by the defeated Republican county officials to get a recount and reinspection of Republican ballots thrown out in Tuesday's election. It is hoped by Congressman Foster that a recount in Posey, Spencer, Warrick and Gibson counties will show enough protested ballots were thrown out by Democratic election boards to overcome the eighty-nine plurality credited to Mayor Boehne Democratic candidate for congress.

Ohio's Belated Returns.

Columbus, O., Nov. 9.—With election returns arriving by every mail and mistakes being found in over half, necessitating their return to county boards of election, the results on the state ticket which are believed by leading Democrats to be shrouded in doubt, seem to favor the election of the Republican candidate below governor.

CARE IN SELECTING A JURY

State Will Endeavor to Place in the Jury Box Only Such Men as Are Not Opposed to the Extreme Penalty—Trial Which Began at Laporte This Morning Will Revive All the Grueling Memories Clustering About the Fate of Mrs. Belle Gunness, the Arch Murderess.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 9.—With the expectation that it will require nearly a week to select a jury to try Ray Lamphere for the murder of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her three children, Prosecutor R. N. Smith for the state, and Attorney H. W. Worden for the defense, this morning in the Laporte circuit court commenced the examination of the veniremen drawn by the jury commissioners. The state will endeavor to place in the jury box only such men as are not opposed to the death penalty, for the state will ask that the death penalty be inflicted, and in addition the state will strive to secure only such men as have not formed an opinion that Mrs. Gunness is alive.

Attorney Worden has made no arrangements for assistance during the trial, for he believes that he will have no trouble in handling the case alone. Prosecutor Smith will be assisted by his law partner, M. R. Sutherland.

Gruesome Story Recalled.

It was on the morning of April 28 that the Gunness case first claimed the attention of the country. With her three children, two girls and a boy, Mrs. Gunness, a well-to-do widow, lived on a well-kept farm north of Laporte. The husband, Peter Gunness, died from the effects of a crushed skull, received one night after the family moved to Laporte. The widow said a meat chopper had fallen on him. Later a child died mysteriously. During the winter of 1908 Mrs. Gunness came into the limelight by reason of her troubles with Ray Lamphere, who was employed by her as a farm hand. Twice she had him arrested for trespass and annoying her, after she had discharged him, and finally she sought to have him sent to the insane hospital. She claimed that he had threatened her life, and on Monday, April 27, she called on Attorney M. E. Leliter, made her will and deposited $700 in the State Bank. She then said Lamphere threatened to burn her house and to kill her. The following morning her house was found in ruins and in the afternoon one adult and three small bodies, all burned to a crisp, were found in the ruins. Lamphere was suspected and that night he was arrested at the home of a farmer where he was employed. He admitted that he had spent the night at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, a colored woman; that he had gotten up early to go to work and that on his way he saw the Gunness house on fire, but that he was afraid to go and arouse the inmates because he feared he would be suspected of setting the place on fire. On the following Monday A. K. Helgelein came to Laporte from Aberdeen, S. D., to investigate the disappearance of his brother, Andrew Helgelein, who came to Laporte to see Mrs. Gunness and who had disappeared after drawing $3,000 through a Laporte bank from an Aberdeen bank. On May 5 the dismembered body of Andrew Helgelein was found buried in a shallow grave. During the next four days nine more bodies were found buried on the Gunness farm. One was identified as that of Jennie Olson, who lived with Mrs. Gunness, but who had disappeared and was said by Mrs. Gunness to have gone to California to school. Another body was identified as that of Olaf Budberg, but the others were never fully identified, although evidence was found to show that at least seven other men had been lured to Laporte by Mrs. Gunness through matrimonial advertisements in Norwegian papers and that she had undoubtedly robbed and then murdered them. Doubt as to the identity of the adult body found in the ruins was then raised, but Coroner Mack, following the finding in the ruins of a gold plate, identified by Dr. I. S. Norton as one he had made for Mrs. Gunness, and other corroborative evidence declared the body to be that of Mrs. Belle Gunness.

Upon evidence submitted to the grand jury, that body indicted Lamphere for murder in the first degree, arson and complicity in the murder of Andrew Helgelein, it being alleged that Lamphere set fire to the Gunness home, thereby causing the death of the woman and her three children. Some weeks later this theory was complicated by the report of Dr. Walter Haines of Chicago, who stated that he had found traces of arsenic and strichnine in the stomachs of Mrs. Gunness and two of the children. Although making damaging admissions at the time of his arrest and at other times, Lamphere has all of time protested his innocence, and the defense, it is understood, will raise the contention that Mrs. Gunness is still alive.

Restored to Health By Vinol

"I was sick, run-down and finally had to give up work. After trying a number of remedies and several physicians, I was just about ready to give up in despair. I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it, and it has done more good for me than all other means combined. It has built me up and restored my strength until I now feel twenty years younger, and am able to attend to my work again as usual." Job Jeavons, 1036 Lind street, Wheeling, W. Va.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains tonic iron and all of the strengthening blood-making and body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

Vinol is unexcelled as a strength creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, and after sickness—and is the best known remedy for coughs, colds and bronchitis. We return your money if Vinol fails to give satisfaction.

to seek his fortune, died rich and honored with the proud title of France's greatest and most prolific contemporary dramatist. He was born in Paris Sept. 7, 1831.

Almost every land knows the stage heroes and heroines born of Sardou's resourceful mind. Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has won her greatest triumphs in roles he wrote for her, such as Tosca, Fedora, Theodora and Gismonda. "Mme. Sans Gene" was written for Mme. Rejane. It was translated into English for Sir Henry Irving and Miss Terry. The great English actor also appeared in "Robespierre" and other products of the genius of the master Frenchman.

Working With New Panel.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 9.—Trial of the race riot cases was resumed today when Abe Raymer, acquitted of murder, was placed on trial for destruction of property. These trials were halted when Judge Creighton challenged the entire petit jury list and the jury-box was purged of all names, it being contended that fair trials were impossible. A special session of the board of supervisors has resulted in a new jury list being chosen. Prominent business men will be called upon for jury service.

OFFICIAL COUNT SETTLES DOUBT

Republicans Win All State Offices But Three.

DEMOCRATS WILL CONTEST

Chairman Jackson of the Democratic State Committee Threatens to Appear to the Legislature for a Review of the Count in Every Case in Which the Official Count Shows the Election of a Republican, Alleging the Illegal Naturalization of Foreigners Brought Over the Line From Chicago.

Indianapolis, Nov. 9.—The Republicans lost the governor, Lieutenant governor and attorney general, but won every other office on the state ticket in last Tuesday's election. This is the showing made in the official returns from all countries, compiled in the office of the secretary of state. Marshall's plurality is 13,660; Hall, 1,541; Sims, 997; Billheimer, 228; Hadley, 338; Lotz, 901; Self, 1,277; McTurnan, 211; Peetz, 316; Q. A. Myers, 1,041; D. Myers, 1,168.

When the vote was tabulated in the secretary of state's office it was done in the presence of representatives from the Democratic state committee, and when it was finished shortly before noon Sunday the Democratic representatives said that they were satisfied with the count as it had been tabulated.

Congressman Lincoln Dixon, who was one of the representatives from the Democratic committee, told Secretary of State Fred A. Sims that so far as he was concerned he was satisfied that the figures had been tabulated correctly.

"But you will understand, Fred," he said to Mr. Sims, "that I am not the only one to be satisfied."

Concerning the contest which the Democratic candidates declare will be instituted, the Republicans say that even with an additional canvass of the vote the majorities are sufficiently substantial to show a victory for them.

"If a contest is instituted," said Mr. Sims, "I believe it will result in uncovering some irregularities in Democratic strongholds. I believe that a contest would result in showing that the Republicans have won their offices."

Will Contest the Count.

That the legislature will be called upon to decide who have been elected to all of the state offices claimed by Republicans is the announcement made by Stokes Jackson, Democratic state chairman.

"There will be a contest in every case in which the official figures show a Republican to have been elected," said Mr. Jackson. "We know that we made a clean sweep in the recent election and we do not propose to be cheated out of the fruits of victory. We shall go to the legislature for justice."

"Upon what specific evidence will the contests be based?" Mr. Jackson was asked.

"There is an abundance of evidence," he replied. "The legislature will be asked, for example, to investigate the wholesale naturalization of foreigners in Lake county. We have information that foreigners were brought there in droves just before election, from Chicago and other cities and were naturalized in a way that was entirely improper and illegal. They were not even asked the ordinary questions which the law specifies they must be asked. We have no doubt that when we get our evidence before the legislature the verdict will be in our favor. At any rate it is due to the state that this naturalization scandal be probed."

James F. Cox, nominee for secretary of state on the Democratic ticket, says he knows he has been fairly elected and that he will file contest proceedings before the legislature.

"I am prepared," said he, "to furnish any body of men sufficient proof of my election."

Mr. Cox says he knows of two instances where enough of his votes were thrown out to overcome the plurality accredited to Fred A. Sims on the official returns, as far as they had been thus far completed. Burt Newell and E. W. Felt, also nominees on the Democratic state ticket, will join in the application that the legislature investigate the whole subject and render a report.

Marshall was elected governor, and still the local Democrats are not happy. That cherished dream of carrying Rush county by 200 majority did not materialize.

Perhaps the President-elect might save himself a lot of worry if he would let the newspapers choose his cabinet for him. They are evidently willing to do it, but the trouble is, that no two lists of appointees exactly agree.

According to the Shelbyville Democrat, suit has been filed to foreclose the Liberal, George Ray's paper, the bitter enemy and competitor of the Democrat. However, in writing up this affair it is not necessary to resort to the worst type of demagogic and stir up class hatred. Enough of this already exists. Instead every effort should be made, especially by a newspaper, to bring about conciliatory conditions between capital and labor.

For a long time the columns of the large dailies have been mainly devoted to politics and the Duke of Abruzzi and his love quest. From now on the amount of political matter will steadily decrease, but there is no sign that the Italian nobleman will be any less conspicuous. In fact, he looms up as large as ever. It may be that, like the poor, he will always be with us. Apparently the only way he can escape notoriety and the public secure a relief, is by marriage. That seems to relegate a man to obscurity. Until the Prince Helie de Sagan and Mme. Anna Gould got married they were the most talked about people in Christendom, but now no one bestows a thought upon them.

BY THE WAYSIDE

A lawyer charges a man ten dollars for ten minutes' conversation—the man insists on paying it. A doctor charges one dollar for a prescription and the patient says: "Oshaw, is that enough?" An undertaker charges a hundred dollars for conducting a funeral and he is just perfectly lovely with everybody inside and outside the family. A man buys a gold brick and apologizes for not having bitten before. An editor walks a mile in the hot sun to get the facts of a death or wedding or social function and spends three hours writing it up and tells lies and praises people until he hates himself. Then if he makes an insignificant omission or error or charges five cents straight for three extra copies, he is a stingy, careless, good for nothing old cuss, who never gets anything right and charges four times the price of a city paper twice as large. In fact, he is a confounded most any old thing and ought to be run out of town. Talk about the ice man. How would you like to run a newspaper?

In these days when so many people go wrong, it may be well enough to remember how many there are who go right. The newspapers blazon all the bad breaks of humanity, but they do not pretend to keep track of all who behave themselves and are faithful to every trust. The reason is obvious. For one person who goes wrong a thousand or more go right. But going wrong is sensational news, and doing right is taken for granted. The exception to the rule makes the "story."

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, Nov. 9.—Senator Hemmey made the following expression in regard to the election: "Conditions were such in this state that it was impossible for us to win. This was demonstrated by the facts that the congressional and local tickets were defeated in eleven congressional districts. I am very grateful to the people for their confidence in the past. This is the first time in a long public career that I have met defeat. I am much gratified by the fact that my own county, although Democratic, elected a Republican member of the legislature. I find some satisfaction in the fact that after eight years of service in the house I went to the head of its greatest committee, and that during my short service in the senate I have secured assignments to important committees and, in all probability, would have become chairman of the appropriations committee of the senate if I had been returned. Of course, I feel thankful for the recognition I have received in public life, and I can truthfully say I have made every effort to be of benefit to the people I represent. On March 4 next I shall go out of office with nothing but gratitude for the honors conferred upon me, and with no ill will toward any of the people of my state."

The Prohibition state committee has received official returns from forty counties. Two years ago these counties polled about 10,000 Prohibition votes. This year they gave Chafin 8,665 votes and Sumner W. Haynes, candidate for governor, 8,401 votes. F. W. Lough, Prohibition state chairman, thinks this ratio of loss will not hold up in the fifty-two remaining counties, as nearly all the counties heard from are in the central part of the state, where the agitation in favor of the county option movement was the greatest. The banner Prohibition county of the state, judging by returns already in, is Grant, which gave exactly 1,200 Prohibition votes this year, as against 1,193 two years ago. Tippecanoe county increased its Prohibition vote from 268 to 289. The largest percentage of gain was in St. Joseph county, where the Prohibition vote was doubled, being increased from 250 two years ago to 500 this year. "The greatest percentage of loss in our vote," said Chairman Lough, "is within the radius where the circulation of the Indianapolis papers is largest. The Chicago, Louisville, St. Louis and Cincinnati papers did not take sides in favor of county option during the campaign, and we have polled our normal vote, apparently in the extreme parts of the state where they circulate."

With the inauguration of Thomas R. Marshall as governor two months hence, there will be a change in the policy of fourteen Indiana cities. Mr. Marshall in his campaign speeches said he believed in local self-government and that if he were elected he would call upon the local authorities in cities governed by the metropolitan police law to suggest members of the police boards, and that he would then comply with the requirements of the law by formally naming the men suggested. It happens that there will be a vacancy of one member of each of the police boards at the time Mr. Marshall goes into office, so that he will have an opportunity to apply his theory at once. The fourteen cities affected by this change are Anderson, Elkhart, New Albany, Richmond, Vincennes, Elwood, Hammond, Jeffersonville, Kokomo, Lafayette, Logansport, Marion, Michigan City and Muncie.

One of the contests now on is over the floor leadership of the house of representatives. Tom Honan, the present floor leader, probably will be made speaker, which would leave a vacancy to be filled. Representative John Sweeney of Crawford and Perry is the favorite in the speculation and Harry Strickland of Hancock is a close second. Candidates for places in the new organization of the house of representatives are being heard from. Charles E. Crawley of Sullivan and Charles T. Sansberry of Anderson are mentioned for principal clerk. George Beebe, one of the Democratic wheelhorses of Madison county, probably will be a candidate for a place on the state tax board.

CURRENT COMMENT

The Tide of Socialism.

Much has been said of the rising tide of socialistic opinion in this country and its possible effect upon politics in years just ahead. It is admitted that socialism is a vague term. If vague in its application to opinions promulgated here and there it is likely to be vague in practical politics. It is not probable that the vote for the national socialistic ticket represents the current sentiment on so called social questions any more than the vote for the national Prohibition ticket represents the nation's ideals on the temperance question. Both of these parties make their appeal as reformers. But the older parties also champion those reforms they deem most urgent.

In that forceful play, "The Servant of House," when the character who represents the "downtrodden" workingman is asked to name the creed which has supplanted in his heart the old orthodoxy he answers, "Socialism." In the end he finds many of the orthodox fold agreeing with him, but they don't go over to his flag. They start in to reform orthodoxy. The scene of this dramatic object lesson is England, where it is thought that the rise of the tide of socialism has been alarming. Already there the party in power has thrown up a breakwater in measures of relief for the toiling millions. Observers think that the high water mark of English socialism is in sight and alarm needless. Both Germany and France have passed through the same ordeal, and in so far as voters tell the story socialist opinion in those countries is stationary, if not receding. The rabid Socialist, and therefore the most dangerous, does not vote, for voting is a function of government, and he doesn't believe in government. The more the Socialists vote for their particular tenets the greater the probability that they will soon join forces with that one of the larger parties which most favors their reforms, and these reforms will have to be practicable in order to win a majority of the suffrages of the nation.

Extradition and Crime.

When the case of the Russian refugee, Jan Pouren, is finally determined it will be likely to stand as a precedent for the United States in future cases. Russia claimed to ask in good faith under an existing treaty for the extradition of a man charged with four crimes, one being murder. Pouren's friends insist that the killing was committed as part of a political movement in which he was involved at the time.

If the Russian should be surrendered for trial for one of the lighter offenses and the trial should take on the color of political persecution this country would have the right to protest. An extradited prisoner should not be tried for an offense other than that for which he was surrendered without his consent. If this rule is applied in the Pouren case the United States will be committed to it as fundamental in treaty obligations. England established it in 1870, and other nations have gradually yielded the point.

The crew of the Russian cruiser Rurik while at target practice recently "shot up" their own ship. If Admiral Togo is the modest hero we've been told, he will dock himself one medal for that revelation.

Of course Hobson's view of Tokyo's royal welcome of the fleet is that the Japs meant to kill our officers and men with kindness and then "run in" the ships.

It took the Duke of the Abruzzi and Katherine so long to fix up the preliminaries that repentance should be extra leisurely and very indefinite at that.

SAVANNAH AUTO RACE

Fine Condition of Course For Gold Trophy Contest.

CORNERS AND TURNS BANKED.

Southern Circuit, From Point of Speed and Absence of Danger, Said to Equal, if Not to Exceed, Long Island Motor Parkway.

The Long Island motor parkway and the state and county roads which complete the course over which the Vanderbilt cup race of 1908 was run is thought by many to comprise about the fastest of racing ground for automobiles that was ever constructed.

Georgia folk, however, from Governor Hoke Smith down to the little black lad whose favorite dainty is water-melon, make a similar claim for the twenty-five mile circuit of prepared roadway over which almost a score of the swiftest automobiles in the world will race in and near Savannah on Thanksgiving day in competition for the $5,000 gold trophy and attending cash prizes offered by the Automobile Club of America. Not alone do the inhabitants of the Empire State of the South say that the southern raceway is far faster than the one on Long Island. Those of the most skillful and daring motor car drivers in the history of automobile racing who have put their machines about the circuit in the southland say that from point of speed and absence of danger there is no auto racing ground anywhere, at home or abroad, that compares with the one at Savannah.

Consequently lovers of the game of auto car racing are looking forward to the smashing of records when the grand prize race of Nov. 26 is run, says the New York Evening Sun. Since the Savannah race of March last, when Lewis Strang drove an Isotta a distance of 342 miles in 6 hours 21 minutes 20 seconds as the winning car competing for the $3,000 cup offered by the Savannah Automobile club, the distance about the course has been extended a fraction over nine miles, so that now the total distance through the city of Savannah and through the outlying country in Chatham county is exactly 26.78 miles. A lap during the race in March amounted to 17.1 miles, the best time for this race being made by Al Poole in an Isotta in 16 minutes 46 seconds, or an average of a mile in a little more than fifty-eight seconds. George Robertson in the Vanderbilt race on Oct. 24 covered a lap of 23.46 miles in 20 minutes 17 seconds, or an average of a mile in fifty-one plus seconds. These figures would seem to uphold the contention of the Vanderbilt cup commission that the Long Island course is the faster.

However, construction work in the way of grading, banking curves, oiling, scraping, and so on, has been carried on almost continuously since the event in March, so that now the Savannah course is said to be far faster than it was when Strang and Poole drove their machines about earlier in the year. The sharp turns of the original raceway have been banked, so that cars may take bends at almost straight-away speed with little danger to the motorists. The stretches have been widened, so that at certain points a number of machines may speed abreast. The surface has been rolled and scraped until it is in perfect condition for racing.

The roadbed has been constructed with a view to minimizing the wear and tear of tires. The concrete construction of the motor parkway portion of the Long Island course was the object of much complaint in this respect on the part of drivers, who claimed that the back stretch, known as the Jericho turnpike, generally was far faster than the concrete section. The roadbed of the southern circuit is said to be similar to but in far better condition than the Jericho road, and for this reason the Savannah circuit is expected to be more satisfactory for the drivers.

The start of the Thanksgiving day race will be made in front of the grand stand, a structure seating 8,000 persons, erected on Estill avenue, in the southern part of Savannah. For something more than a mile the course extends through Savannah streets to White Bluff road, where it takes a right angle turn into the longest stretch of the entire course, a distance of 20,000 feet, or more than three miles, without a turn in the road. At the Montgomery crossroad another right angle is met, followed by a stretch of something under a mile, when another ninety degree turn is met at Water's road. Alternating stretches less than a mile in length and right angle turns bring the course to Whitefield avenue, an irregular road more than two miles long.

"Swamps and a small river inclose a foot shaped circuit of three miles or so, and an almost straight stretch of three miles, followed by a hairpin turn, brings the road to the Isle of Hope, said to be the most dangerous point of the circuit. The cut turn here is not especially sharp, yet extreme care must be exercised by the driver. The only accident in the history of the course occurred here last March, when a wheelman lost control of his car and shot with it up over the banking only to land uninjured in soft mud on the other side.

An irregular winding road of several miles is next encountered, followed by two roads 1/4 mile in length, joined with two wide turns, bringing the autoist to the home stretch, leading back to the grand stand. This stretch, along Dale avenue, is 11,250 feet, or more than two miles in length. It is a straightaway, slightly up grade, so that the spectator in the grand stand may look down on the flying machines as they come speeding up the course. The roadway here is wide enough for six machines to run abreast, so that a close finish is certain to give the lookers-on plenty in the way of excitement.

No railroad crosses the circuit at any point. Trolley tracks cross at two points. On the days of the races and during practice hours, however, the trolleys will not be operated across the course. All bridges have been constructed without steep grades in passing over roadways and streams.

When the Savannah Automobile club was incorporated early this year and Governor Smith of Georgia consented to act as honorary referee at the race in March the military organizations of the state and city volunteered to patrol the course on the days of the races. This they did, and the roadway was kept clear for the autoists. When one of the machines overturned during the race none of the spectators was permitted to go out on the course. The same state of affairs will prevail on Nov. 25 and 26. The soldiers will be armed, and any effort on the part of lookers-on to throng the course will be met with stern resistance.

HORSE IN A MOW.

(Shelbyville Democrat.)

When a long-haired chap writes a novel he often gets his hero into such a hole that he has to make him do some unheard of things to get out. Likewise when a fisherman gets back from his outing he invariably increases the size of his catch a hundred fold, but a story came to light in this city that has got them all topped.

Ed. Limpus has a horse and he usually keeps him in box-stall in his barn. Last Friday evening he returned from school and went to the barn. Mr. Horse was gone and when he was informed by his wife that she had not loaned him to any one he came to the conclusion that he had been stolen.

After having come to the foregoing conclusion, he went to the barn to look for evidence and heard a noise in the haymow, which sounded like a horse eating hay. He investigated and there was his family nag in the mow quietly eating hay.

The animal had climbed to the mow, which is twelve feet above the floor of the barn. The stairway is but two feet wide and makes one turn. He secured the assistance of Amos Sparks, the blacksmith, and together they rescued the animal. Hay was thrown upon the stairway and the horse backed down. This sounds like a grape-vine, but the above-named men say they will swear to it.

GLOBE TROTTING TORTOISE.

(Greensburg News.)

When Mrs. Will Smith heard a dog making more than a little fuss in her back yard this morning she went out to investigate the cause and found that the canine discovered a land turtle that from all the marks had traveled all the way here from Newpoint. The tortoise is evidently not unfamiliar to the hand of man for on the hard shell of the underneath it bears several marks of a knife or some kind of a sharp instrument. The date of the eighth month 21st day and year of '05 with name of Curtis and Newpoint, Indiana, are plainly visible.

According to these it seems that the fellow was in Newpoint or at least in that neighborhood in the year of '05 and it further appears that he has traveled the distance of nine miles to this city.

GOLD MEDAL FLOUR

THE VERY HIGHEST QUALITY

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON © COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

Mr. Brett and I went up together. The genie crossed arms and grabbed something for us out of both his bags at the same time. Then, by mistake, he gave me the thing from the left hand bag and Mr. Brett the one from the right. We walked away to let others have their chance, looking at the presents we had got. It was funny—they both happened to be rings.

Mine was twisted bands of platinum and gold, forming a knot to hold a cabochon sapphire. His was a thin setting of seven stones set in a straight row—diamond, emerald, amethyst, ruby, emerald, sapphire, topaz.

"Yours is meant for a woman and mine for a man," I said. "He got them out of the wrong bags. But they're both pretty and so queer."

"Will you—shall we change?" he asked.

"Oh, I didn't mean to suggest that," I hurried to say. "I can give mine to my brother when I go home. And you—there must be some one!"

"I've no sister, and there's no one else," said Mr. Brett. "Do have it. You see, I couldn't get it on my little finger. And won't you keep the big one too? It isn't as if I were like Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox's other guests!"

I couldn't bear to hear him say that, so I broke in and insisted that he should have the ring. "She would want you to have it, of course, if she knew," I said. "And, besides, I want you to, which is something."

"It's everything," he answered.

Then we changed rings, and I told him I hoped his would bring him luck and glorious luck.

"Do you wish it may give me what I want most in the world?" he asked, and I said that I did.

"What do you wish mine may give me?" I went on.

"What do you want most—great wealth?" he questioned me.

I shook my head.

"To have the world at your feet?"

"I shouldn't know what to do with it."

"To have the one you love best on earth love you?"

"I should have to stop and think which one it is."

"Then I wish that you may love the one who loves you best on earth and more than all the world."

Just as I was looking up, surprised at his tone more than his words, there came a burst of music, and part of the wall, with the platform on which the genie and his lamp had been standing, rolled away. The other big room of the cellar was revealed, with quantities of little tables all laid out for supper and the walls covered with smilax and roses. In the middle of this new room was a huge illuminated ship of ice in a green sea.

Everybody exclaimed and laughed at their surprise at such an unexpected transformation. Now was the time for unmasking, of course, and there were shrieks of surprise and amusement as people discovered who their companions really were. For a minute—I'm sure it couldn't have been more—I forgot Mr. Brett to stare at the great glittering ice ship. When I turned to speak to him he was gone. And whether he vanished on purpose because he didn't want to unmask in a company of strange people or whether he was separated from me by the sudden press of the crowd I don't know.

I suppose I shall never know. I only know that I lost him and that I was immediately surrounded by other men, saying nice things about my costume, wanting me to have supper with them and asking me for dances afterward.

The rest of the night went by with a wild rush. We didn't stop dancing till 4 a.m., young people, and I believe the older ones played bridge. We had a second supper served upstairs toward dawn, and when the last people went away it was broad and glorious day-light.

"Well, deah," said Sally, "when every one had gone and she'd come into my room to help me undress, 'had you a good time?'

"Splendid!" said I, sighing with joy. "I'm dancing still—in my head. My first ball!"

"Katherine doesn't call it a ball. But that's a detail. Had you any proposals?"

"Oh, Sally, how came you to think of such a thing? But isn't it too extraordinary? I had three."

"Why extraordinary?"

"Because I hardly knew the men!"

"Americans make up their minds quickly about what they want."

"So Mr. P— So I've been told."

"Accept any one?"

"Not I."

"Didn't even give them a wee mite of hope?"

"Dear me, no."

"Poor Potter—for one."

"Sally, I do wish he wouldn't do that sort of thing, since you speak of it. It makes it so embarrassing. And somehow I don't feel he really means it. I've always the impression that he does it because he thinks he ought."

"He'd like to marry you, Betty. There's no doubt of that, and one can't blame him for it."

"Well, if he keeps on I shall be driven away," I said, "although they don't want me to go home yet for several reasons. I don't want to go either. I'm having a wonderful experience. But—"

"Haven't you met any man you could imagine yourself caring for, dear? Or perhaps you don't fancy Americans."

"Oh, I do!" I exclaimed. "They're all great fun. And one—man I've met I think superior to any other I ever knew. But, then, I've known so few, and I don't know him well. You needn't look at me like that. It isn't a romance, you dear. I'm most unlikely to know him any better ever. He isn't like the rest. He isn't like anybody else I ever saw."

"Now," said Sally coaxingly, "you might tell me if he's one of the three who proposed."

"Indeed, he isn't, and he never will."

"Why, Sally, I don't mind telling you I mean that Mr. Brett who was on the ship and whom we met afterward accidentally in the park. He is rather wonderful considering his station, isn't he?"

"He'd be rather wonderful in any station. That's my theory about him."

"I think it's mine too. He was here tonight—as a newspaper reporter, he hinted, though he didn't exactly say it was in so many words. Did he talk to you?"

"Yes," said Sally. "Indirectly I got him his chance to come."

"I gave him good advice," said I, laughing—"all about his future and ambition and things like that. I hope he'll take it."

"He'll probably try all he knows. Did he thank you prettily?"

"I'm not sure whether he thanked me at all. But he gave me this ring and wished me luck with it. It was the genie's present to him in Aladdin's cave. I changed with him for the one I had. But this is much prettier Look."

"D-E-A-R-E-S-T. Dearest," Sally spelled out as she held the third finger of my right hand, on which I'd slipped the ring.

"Where do you find that?" I asked quickly.

"Don't you know? Why, the stones spell it—diamond, emerald, amethyst, ruby, emerald, sapphire, topaz."

I felt my cheeks burn when she gave me this explanation.

I wonder if Mr. Brett knew!

Chapter 12

IT'S more than a fortnight since I've been able to write about any of the things that have happened to me. The last I did was on the morning after the great affair, when we were looking forward to the pink ball in the evening. Mrs. Ess Kay didn't quite have her wish, for the ball was a moderate success, but it did seem a pale pink after the gorgeousness of the night before, and it might have been still paler (as every one felt rather washed out) if it hadn't been for one special excitement. Mohunleigh's engagement to Carolyn Fitchley was announced, and we were told that the wedding would have to be soon, as it was to be.

It seemed horribly irreverent to rehearse for the ceremony, but nobody else thought so except Mohunleigh and me, and Mohunleigh said in confidence that he'd found out the bridegroom was a mere lay figure at a wedding—anyhow in America—and he intended to let Caro do exactly as she liked until after they were married. Then she might have to find out that once in awhile it would be just as well if she did what he liked. But he asked me not to mention this to Carolyn and her stepmother, so I didn't. And in spite of my objection the rehearsals were interesting. I felt as if I oughtn't to laugh and joke, but the others all did tremendously, so I did, too, in the end.

Mohunleigh had had news which called him back to England, and he wanted to take his bride with him.

Before I stopped to think I'd promised Carolyn to be one of her bridesmaids, but five minutes later I would almost have liked to change my mind because of Potter. He was asked to be an usher. (I didn't know at the time what that meant, but I had a vague impression it was something of importance at American weddings.) So that I was sure to see a lot of him if I were bridesmaid, and in any case I was beginning to feel he might make it too awkward for me to visit much longer with Mrs. Ess Kay.

However, when on second thought I tried to get out of my promise by hinting that I might have to go home. Carolyn seemed ready to cry and said that if I threw her over it would spoil everything. The wedding would be in ten days, and surely I hadn't been thinking of going back to England as soon as that?

It was quite true, I hadn't. And more than that, I knew I shouldn't be welcome at home. I made up my mind to get through somehow and told Carolyn I had only been joking.

She had always wanted to be married at Grace church in New York, but New York is no place for August weddings, if an August wedding you must have; so Carolyn's invitations, which appeared almost immediately after the engagement was announced, told every one that Mr. and Mrs. Pitchley begged them to be present at their daughter's marriage in the drawing room of the Chateau de Plaisance.

I didn't know that you could be married in a drawing room, but it seems you can, quite properly. However, when I go home I don't think I'd better say much about that part of Mohunleigh's wedding, or some of the old fashioned people mightn't understand. I should hate them to get the idea just because of the drawing room that poor Carolyn was morganatic or something.

She seemed ecstatically happy, more than I could imagine any girl being if she had to marry Mohunleigh, who, although a dear good fellow when you know him, isn't a bit romantic. But she suddenly blossomed out into all sorts of pleasant American ways, sent Caro flowers and things every day, though I fancy he couldn't afford it; gave her a lovely solitaire diamond ring, which I'm sure he couldn't, and a "guard," an heirloom in his family.

It would have been shocking, Carolyn said, for her to be seen anywhere after the invitations were out, though I can't think why, as she didn't seem at all ashamed of marrying Mohunleigh, but rather the contrary, and asked me hundreds of questions about what she would have to do when she was a countess. Fortunately, though, she had lots of things to keep her busy indoors, trying on such frocks as she could get made in a hurry and writing letters to every girl she knew announcing her engagement.

The funniest things about the whole affair were—for me—the ushers, the rehearsals for the wedding and having a married woman as a sort of head-bridesmaid. Carolyn's best girl chum was married herself in the spring, so she had to be what they call a matron of honor.

How to Cure Skin Diseases.

Eczema, pimples, dandruff and itching skin diseases are of local origin and are caused by germs. In order to cure these diseases the germs and their poisons must be driven to the surface of the skin and destroyed. Salves and greasy lotions may give temporary relief, but they do not destroy the germs that cause the disease. A St. Louis chemist has discovered a clean vegetable liquid remedy that will draw the germs and their poisons to the surface of the skin and destroy them, leaving a nice, clear, healthy skin.

This remedy is known as Zemo, and by its many remarkable cures has attracted the attention of the leading scientists and skin specialists of this country and Europe.

Zemo has been given the most cordial reception by the public of any similar remedy ever produced, and it is recognized as an honest medicine that makes honest cures.

Zemo is for sale everywhere. You can obtain a trial package free by writing to the E. W. ROSE MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo. Mr. F. E. Wolcott has secured the agency for Zemo in Rushville, and will gladly show you proof of some of the wonderful cures made by this remarkable

FAMILY CARES.

This Information May Be of Value to Many a Mother in Rushville.

When there is added to the many cares inseparable from the rearing of children that affliction of weakness of the kidneys and auxiliary organs, the mother's lot is far from a happy one. This condition can be quickly changed and absolutely cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. When this is known the mother's burden will be lighter and her home happier.

Mrs. Ulysses Beaver, 120 Fifth St. Rushville, Ind., says: "We were very much pleased with our experience in using Doan's Kidney Pills. They were given to our child for a kidney weakness and the relief was prompt. The trouble had caused much anxiety and was of great embarrassment to the child. Nothing that we gave her seemed to bring relief. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, we procured them at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s drug store and they soon cured our daughter of the difficulty. I feel it my duty to advise mothers having children similarly afflicted to try Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

SCHOOL ESSAY COSTS LEG

Overzealous Lad Injured by Fast Express Train.

McLeansboro, Ill., Nov. 9.—Carter Daniel, fifteen years old, a pupil in the high school, lost his left leg while gathering data for an essay his teacher told him to write.

Young Daniel was assigned to prepare a descriptive composition on the arrival and departure of a fast passenger train. With several companions he awaited the arrival of a train on the railroad tracks several blocks from the station. They watched the approach of the flyer and he noted its slackening speed as it drew nearer the station.

As it neared him he decided to board it and ride to the station, there to see it pull out. As he attempted to board the first coach his foot slipped and he was thrown under the wheels.

Shops Running on Full Time.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 9.—The Queen and Crescent Railroad has put over 300 men to work within the past week. The shops in this city have resumed operations on full time with a complete force of men. The road's officials report business nearly as great for October as for the same period last year.

BAN ON COSTLY DRESS.

Head of Woman's College Threatens Gingham Uniform.

President Ella Sabin of Downer college, in Milwaukee, Wis., one of the best known women's colleges in the west, has announced to her students that unless the rich girls in the college abstain from wearing wide brimmed "Merry Widow" hats and other garments in the extreme of fashion she will put in effect a college uniform of gingham or some other cheap material so that the poor girls will not be ashamed at the contrast between themselves and their wealthier schoolmates.

The order is expected to result in simpler clothing. The same order recently went into effect at the State university, applying only to hats, however.

Medals For Canal Workers.

Medals of bronze manufactured from the old scrap left by Ferdinand de Lesseps in his unsuccessful effort to dig a canal across the Isthmus of Panama are soon to be struck in the mint in Philadelphia to be presented to all American workmen on the present canal operations who can show a service record extending over two years. Correspondence toward this end has been conducted for some time, and it is expected the medals of honor will be ready for presentation in 1909. The idea originated with President Roosevelt on his visit to the canal zone.

Large quantities of copper and tin have been collected from the useless French machinery for the purpose.

Ginger Ale Twoscore Years Old.

A case of ginger ale buried in civil war times in a hill just below the twin lights at Atlantic Highlands has been found. It is in good condition and is very strong.

CAN'T DOWN THIS EDITOR

When Printers Struck He Got Out His Paper With Typewriters.

Cleveland, Nov. 9.—The strike of the printers on the two local Hungarian papers, the Hungarian News and the Hungarian Szabadsag, has had the result of producing one of the most novel publications ever issued here. Typewriting was the basis upon which the editor of the Szabadsag, E. P. Kohanyi, was able to produce his paper. Typewritten sheets were photographed and from the photographs printing plates were made, the same as a photograph is engraved for purposes of printing. The engravings of the typewritten sheets were then placed together in consecutive order and from these the paper was printed.

Negro Ravisher to Be Hanged.

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 9.—Will Greenham, a negro, on trial for criminal assault on Miss Pearl Tucker, a sixteen year old white girl, confessed and was sentenced to be hanged Dec. 18. The crime was committed a month ago, and fearing a lynching a company of state militia has been on guard at the court house during the trial. Graham was removed to the penitentiary under guard of the soldiers to await the execution of the sentence.

Thomas Alexander Pardoned.

W.B. Reduso CORSETS

The Perfect Corset for Large Women

It places over-developed women on the same basis as their slender sisters. It tapers off the bust, flattens the abdomen, and absolutely reduces the hips from 1 to 5 inches. Not a harness—not a cumbersome affair, no torturing straps, but the most scientific example of corsetry, boned in such a manner as to give the wearer absolute freedom of movement.

New W. B. Reduso No. 770 for large tall women. Made of white cotton. Hose supporters front and sides, also made in batiste. Sizes 20 to 36. Price $3.00.

New W. B. Reduso No. 772 for large short women, is the same as No. 770, except that the bust is somewhat lower all around. Made of white cotton. Hose supporters front and sides. Also made in batiste. Sizes 20 to 36. Price $3.00.

Ask any dealer anywhere to show you the New W. B. "Hip-subduing" models from $1.00 to $3.00 per pair.

LOCAL NEWS

The city health board met in Dr. J. G. Lewis' office today.

Now remember, two thousand subscribers is what the Republican wants.

A new piano was installed today at the Grand theater for the vaudeville show tonight and tomorrow night.

Rev. W. H. Clark spoke at the usual hours at the United Presbyterian church Sunday to two magnificent audiences.

Mrs. Alvan Clark of North Sexton street is seriously ill with the quinsy. Miss Mary Coons of Orange has been secured as nurse.

C. W. Hinkle, the new owner and manager of the Ball elevator, was sold to Delphi last week by the sudden death of his father.

Mrs. Luther Hungerford is seriously ill with rheumatism at her home southwest of this city. Mrs. Hungerford has been confined to her home over two months.

The school teachers in the Shelbyville schools have collected pipes, cigarette paper and tobacco from over 200 students between 14 and 15 years of age.

The Indiana bankers will hold their convention in Indianapolis on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Several of the bankers of this city will attend.

The Watson drum corps is taking under consideration an offer to march in the big parade in Indianapolis during the State meeting of Red Men which is to be held in that city.

Greenfield Star: In a home on the northside the mystery of a badly tuned piano was cleared Saturday morning when a red bandana handkerchief was found wrapped among the keys.

Governor Hanly has decided to call November 25th as "corn day" in Indiana with a view to selecting corn for the world's second corn exhibition to be held in Omaha, December next.

Rev. W. J. Wright of Cincinnati, who filled the pulpit both morning and evening yesterday at the Main Street Christian church, made a very good impression upon his audience at both services.

The Pastor's Aid Society of the Main Street Christian church will meet with Mrs. Marion Banta in West Fifth street tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Considerable new corn is being received at the elevators now, as it is pretty well matured and dried out. Corn is a good price and those who had good crops will make a handsome profit off of their ground.

The more subscribers we have the better newspaper we can give you. We want two thousand. Help us secure that number. It will be quite a distinction for a city the size of Rushville to have such an enterprise.

Rev. J. L. Cowling spoke to a large and interested audience last night on the subject, "The Belated Son, or the Man That Lost Out." The subject was one of interest and well delivered. The music rendered by a sextette choir was unusually good.

TAFT RESPONSIBLE FOR A MAN'S WIFE

School Teacher in Shelby County Won a Bride on Defeat of Bryan.

WILL BE MARRIED CHRISTMAS.

One of the strange election bets made during the campaign just closed, comes from Brandywine township, and the result will be a wedding during the holidays, says the Shelbyville Republican.

New Castle Courier: Conductor Al Donnegan of the "Rushville Limited" is running on a main little run for a few days in the absence of the regular conductor.

NIMRODS WILL BE UP WITH THE SUN

To Hustle Off to the Woods and Fields in Quest of the Tooth-some Bird.

OPENING OF QUAIL SEASON

The hunting season for quail will open tomorrow and local nimrods are on the tip toe of expectancy; indeed many will spend a restless night tonight in anticipation of a ramble to the woods and fields at sun-up.

The game wardens are being increased in numbers and renewed vigilance being urged. And while the law does not require it farmers are posting their lands against hunters in more instances than ever before. No hunter has the right to go onto lands to hunt without first having a license and consent of the land owner. If he does so he is liable to a fine and this year they will be watching very closely.

YOUNG LADS WERE HOPPING TRAINS

Eight Were Taken Into Custody and Lectured by Mayor Cowing This Morning.

RELEASED ON GOOD BEHAVIOR

Several small boys have been causing much trouble by riding trains and breaking electric lights over the city of late and they were finally reported to the authorities by their school teachers. Officer Pea corralled eight of them this morning and took them up before Mayor Cowing. The mayor took their names and gave them a curtain lecture and some good advice, warning them that imprisonment would follow if they persisted in the forbidden practices.

AMUSEMENTS

Do you want to laugh? If you do, just go to see Billy Link's all-star vaudeville show at the Grand tonight or tomorrow night, and Billy will make you laugh in his own inimitable way. To say that Billy has a good show would be putting it mildly. A better, cleaner, or more artistic vaudeville performance was never put together. There is not a single feature in the entire bill which does not materially strengthen the show. Here is the program:

Mead and Mamie Werntz, high class aerial artists.

Eddie Dwyer in a series of clever imitations.

Billy Link and entire company rescuing a fort from the Indians, assisted by Miss Willette Charters and regiment of rough riders.

Miss Georgia Charters in monologue and song.

The clever Hudson sisters in singing and dancing.

Musical comedy; Dr. Cheatem's drug store.

CAST.

Bud Hicks, sole owner and silent partner of Dr. Cheatem's remedies ..... Eddie Dwyer. Bonnie, the sunshine of Bud's heart ..... Ola Hudson. Lady Gibson, Miss Willette Charters. One of our pure food Pinkerton men on the job ..... Mead Werntz. Frisco, alias Denver, a real dope ..... Mead Werntz. Weary Willie, alias Dr. Cheatem ..... Billy Link.

Incidental musical numbers will be introduced throughout the comedy by Eddie Dwyer, Mead and Mamie Werntz, the Hudson sisters, the Charters Sisters and Billy Link.

The Vaudet offers another splendid military subject in pictures for tonight, entitled, "In the hands of the Enemy." Miss Gregg sings "That's What the Daisy Said."
